TASK 1: BANKSY (14 points)

You are going to read an article about Banksy, the celebrated graffiti artist. Seven paragraphs have been removed from the article. Choose from paragraphs B-J the one which best fits each gap (1-7). There are two extra paragraphs that you do not need to use. Write your answers ON THE ANSWER SHEET provided. The first gap (0) is an example.

BANKSY: UNRAVELLING THE STORY OF THE MYSTERY MAN

"Man is least himself when he talks in his own person. Give him a mask and he will tell you the truth."

Oscar Wilde

(0) A

A world-renowned mystery man, a man who can make you a millionaire if he chooses your wall to paint on, Banksy is arguably the most spoken about street artist of the age. ____1.____ He could be an individual or an organisation who secretly transforms street walls into magnificent murals that shine a light on the dark side of consumerism and capitalism.

The most remarkable of his art techniques is the use of stencils which he developed as a means of quick graffiti. ____2.____ The story of how he came up with this idea is also an interesting one. Now, the basis of his said history relies on rumours and speculations, often with him suspiciously being quoted as the source. But, nonetheless, the story goes. Banksy left school when he was very young (some suggest that he was expelled from his school). He grew up in the Barton Hill district of Bristol, which was quite scary at the time.

When he was 18, he once tried to paint a train with his mates, and they were raided by the British Transport Police. ____3.____ He goes on to recall, "As I lay there listening to the cops on the tracks, I realised I had to cut my time in half or give it up altogether. I was staring straight up at the stencilled plate on the bottom of the fuel tank when I realized I could just copy that style and make each letter three feet high."

The masked evangelist of street art and freedom of expression has successfully kept his identity a secret, but people have certain theories of who he could be. The most popular guess has been that he is a man that goes by the name of Robin Gunningham. Nonetheless, his art, even though being controversial and satirical in nature of the society, is highly appreciated by art connoisseurs all around the world. In recent accomplishments, his latest work Devolved Parliament was auctioned in London at £9.9 million on October 3rd 2019.

But none of these auctions are held with Banksy's consent. ____4.____

This movement came into light when his 2004 graffiti named Kissing Coppers, which he painted in Brighton, was sold in 2014 at $575,000 at an auction in the USA. This was also observed when his internationally reputed graffiti Slave Labor [Bunting Boy] on a public wall in London disappeared one night and was sold in the USA for around $500,000 – $700,000. ____5.____

Unfortunately, none of this money went to Banksy. And neither does he want it. He condemns that his artwork is prey to consumerism and is sold at auctions. But he also has his way to make people aware of his disapproval of such acts. In a 2018 Sotheby's auction of his most reputed sketch Girl with Balloon in London, the painting self-shred inside the frame as soon as it was sold. And it was sold for about $1.1 million! Nonetheless, Banksy still needs to earn his bread and butter. And he does that through Pest Control, a handling service acting on behalf of the artist. ____6.____

A few days earlier, Banksy opened a pop-up homewares store in Croydon named 'Gross Domestic Product'. The store was opened to tackle a lawsuit against Banksy by a greeting cards company to seize legal custody of his name. And to prevent this, he was advised to sell his own range of branded merchandise.

____7.____ Or he shall forever be immortalised in history as the anonymous artist. And who knows, he might have a disciple who will be taking his title or at least carrying forward his legacy.

WRITE YOUR ANSWERS ON THE ANSWER SHEET

PARAGRAPHS
A.	Maybe that's why Banksy refuses to uncover his identity, so he could embody the role of one who exposes the truth of consumerism and capitalism.
B.	Everyone bolted leaving Banksy behind. He says, "The rest of my mates made it to the car and disappeared, so I spent over an hour hidden under a dumper truck with engine oil leaking all over me."
C.	Banksy would leave graffiti on the walls, sometimes public but also often privately owned. So once the artist gained popularity, people started stripping off the paintings from the walls and auctioned them.
D.	Modern art is certainly offensive on purpose. For instance Banksy's "Gross Domestic Product" store "where art irritates life." And of course it mocks Britain's flag, and Tony the Tiger. But uses recycled materials.
E.	Being pushed by the lawsuits and the rising curiosity of people all around the world might just make him reveal his identity very soon.
F.	But the residents of the area claimed it back and said that it belonged to them. It embodied the human rights issues of the UK and was returned to the UK where it was sold for $1.1 million!
G.	And what adds to the controversy of his work is that, in 20 years of his career, no one knows who he is. Banksy refuses to do interviews and has never been caught 'red-handed'.
H.	That is the sole point of sale for Banksy's new works and the source for his income. And if he makes a big sale, he often donates the excess money to charities and people in need.
I.	Perhaps the solemn style is part of the gag about taking politics so seriously when there's nothing to see here but some pompous apes. Regrettably one could say the same about the art world.
J.	It was revolutionary for street art and his career as it is nearly impossible to spend hours painting graffiti without being recognised by someone.

TASK 2: IBIZA (12 points)

You will read some texts about exploring Ibiza. Match statements 1-12 to texts B-J. Statement 0 is an example. Write your answers ON THE ANSWER SHEET provided. Remember that each text may be chosen more than once and that each statement corresponds to only one text.

TEXTS
A	Colourful kaftans, handmade beaded leather belts, woven sunhats and designer flip-flops and shades — chic bohemian style has become synonymous with Ibiza. Ibiza's Dalt Vila (Old Town) is a good place for a shopping spree, with boutiques down cobbled alleyways selling all manner of crafted goods.
B	The island's carefree spirit attracts yogis and wellness gurus looking to unwind and connect with their inner selves and with nature. Whether you celebrate your private practice on the beach or spend a week at a retreat, you are in the right place to find bliss. Several yoga studios host retreats focused on daily practice, workshops, teacher training, and revitalization therapy. So if you are sick and tired of your hectic lifestyle, it might be time to give it a shot.
C	Fearless travelers in need of adventures on the water can try flyboarding, parasailing, and jet skiing, but nothing beats racing off a cliff and plunging feet first into the island's crystal-clear waters. The west coast coves of Cala Tarida and Cala Bassa are popular spots for diving. After catching your breath from all the activity, relax on the white sand beaches with a well-deserved cocktail. The company Rockid Ibiza Outdoor arranges excursions around the island including cliff-jumping with instructors.
D	Finding the right lodging is key. Though there are charming hotels on the island, the best way to stay is definitely a house rental, and the company to use is Deliciously Sorted Ibiza. Owned by in-the-know Brit Serena Cook, the company reps a range of houses from the affordable family home we rented to drop-dead estates that draw celebrity clientele. Their concierge service stocked our kitchen, booked our restaurants, arranged the world's best babysitter and even got us a discount on a rental car handing us the keys in the airport upon arriving — no waiting in line.
E	Despite its glitzy reputation as the ultimate European destination for clubbers, Ibiza offers much more than an endless party. With a documented history that dates back at least as far as the Phoenicians in 654 B.C., the island has learned UNESCO World Heritage status not only for culture, but for biodiversity as well. It remains a bastion of idyllic beaches and pine forests, plus it's full of architectural landmarks.
F	There's a growing atmosphere of exclusiveness, with many new venues catering for those who want to let their hair down in unashamed luxury. Perhaps this is due to the new wave of immigrants — Elle Macpherson, Jade Jagger and James Blunt all have secluded villas here — and the fact that those who partied during the Club Tropicana years have grown up (somewhat) and now want to indulge in sushi and Champagne rather than a bag of chips and bottle of Estrella.

G	Blending Moorish and medieval styles, Dalt Vila, or Old Town, is a labyrinth of narrow, cobbled streets which offers a glimpse of yesteryear. You should also make your way toward Eivissa Castle, Eivissa's most renowned landmark. Interestingly, this UNESCO site was constructed over a thousand-year period and it's got the former governor's residence, some military barracks, and a gatehouse tower for you to visit.
H	For relaxing pristine sandy, Caribbean-style beaches, jump the ferry to nearby Formentera— Ibiza's chill little sister—which is far too beautiful to miss. Its gorgeous beaches and its calm, shallow water are ideal for even the smallest tots to play; and although some beaches may be a bit busy, these kids also love the vendors who walk the beach chopping up fresh pineapple and coconut. Also, make sure you look to the easternmost tip of the island to find a picture-perfect spot with sweeping ocean views, plunging cliffs, and El Faro de la Mola, the tallest and oldest lighthouse on the island.
I	You'd better climb Ibiza's highest peak, Sa Talaia, for peak views of traditional whitewashed Ibicenco homes, verdant pine forests, and panoramas of Sant Antoni Bay. Start the trek to the summit—roughly 5.5 miles round trip—a few hours before dusk to watch the sky turn a beautiful kaleidoscope of purples, pinks, and yellows as the sun sinks below the horizon. Before beginning the trek, veer off Sa Talaia Street to visit the Can Jeroni Cultural Center for exhibitions featuring regional paintings, sculptures, and photography.
J	No one should miss Balafia, set in a pretty grove of lemon trees. There's no menu, just the freshest tomato salad and the most savory seafood you could want. Another day we hit El Clodenis, in San Rafael. Here, under olive trees in the peaceful walled garden of an old finca, grilled meat with a good red has never tasted better. Not only was the food delicious, but there was a small playground for toddlers.

TASK 3: FAKE NEWS (14 points)

Read part of an article about fake news and decide which word best fits each gap (1-7). Use only ONE word (contractions count as one word) in each gap (1-7). Gap (0) is provided as an example. Write your answers ON THE ANSWER SHEET in CAPITAL LETTERS.

FAKE NEWS IS REINFORCED BY FALSE MEMORIES

Volunteers (0) WERE shown fabricated news reports in the week before Ireland's 2018 abortion law referendum. Nearly half of them subsequently claimed to (1) _____ had prior memories of at least one of the made-up events detailed. And many failed to question their false recollections even after (2) _____ told the articles they had read might be fake. The 3,140 participants would have been more likely to have created false memories if the reports had lied about the side they had opposed, the study added. The peer-reviewed work supports prior research (3) _____ the phenomenon. But its authors say it is the first time the problem has been tested in relation to a real-world referendum at the time it was being held. One of the academics told BBC News it highlighted (4) _____ difficult it could be to "undo" spurious memories once they had been created. "Memory is a reconstructive process and we are vulnerable to suggestion distorting our recollections, without our conscious awareness," Dr Gillian Murphy, of University College Cork, said. "The implications for any upcoming elections are that voters are vulnerable to not just believing a fake news story (5) _____ also falsely recalling that the made-up event truly happened."

Facebook used to display red warning flags alongside news stories third-party websites had judged to be fake news. But it changed the strategy after saying it could strengthen deeply held beliefs (6) _____ than calling them into question. Instead, it and other social networks now aim to limit the spread of fake stories, provide wider context and shut down state-backed propaganda accounts. Even so, one UK-based fact-checking charity said more needed to be done. "These findings are concerning and link to previous studies showing how once something is in our memory, it is harder to correct it," said Amy Sippitt, research manager at Full Fact. "That's why it's important to tackle the causes of bad information to prevent it (7) _____ arising in the first place."
